No-Prep Therapy Activity: Summer Fun Crossword

by Rynette R. Kjesbo, M.S., CCC-SLP

Summer is here! No more pencils... No more books... Long hours of homework have been replaced by long days playing outside, swimming, and staying up late! While summer is a chance for children to take a much-needed break from school and schoolwork, many children who don't engage in any learning activities during the summer find they have forgotten things or have fallen behind their classmates once the new school year begins. During summer break, parents can help their children maintain skills learned during the year. Providing your children with fun, engaging activities is a great way to make practicing skills more enjoyable and less of a "chore" during summer break! Here is a fun Summer Crossword Puzzle that parents and children can work on together to practice vocabulary, critical thinking, memory skills, and more!
